The youth wrote him a letter, and stated that he required a certain sum of money, and that if he did not comply with the request, the writer and some others had agreed to kill him. THE few hours of heavy rain on Saturday night wrought a good deal of damage to the central slopes of the City. As we predicted, the chasm in Zetland-street, which had been ingeniously filled up loosely with the sand previously washed out, was quickly swept; out again. The rush of water swamped the shops at the foot of the hill -notably Gate & Fairall's and Heuermann & Herbst's, who, we should think, have very good grounds for damages against the Government. In other parts old rents were re-opened, but no very great amount of damage was done, Wyndharn Street was flooded, as usual, We learn that some bright particular star in the P. W. > SAD fatality occurred at Aberdeen on Saturday evening. H.M.S. Severn is in dock there, and about sunset many of the crew went down to the beach to bathe. Among them was a firstclass petty officer named Arthur Biggs, who was only able to swim a few strokes, and who was being assisted by a comrade. Whilst the men were disporting in the deep water a sailor-an indifferent swimmer-called out for assistance. Instantly a rush was made towards him, in which the man who was supporting Biggs was carried away for a moment. Biggs at once sank and did not rise again. Every effort was made to save him, the best swimmers diving repeatedly, but the water was too deep. Divers were sent down, but sank deeply into the mud, and had to be dragged up again, and the firing of the Severn's guns over the place failed to raise the body. It floated; however, yesterday, and was conveyed to the Cemetery during the afternoon. An inquiry will be held to-morrow.

I allow you three days, and if you do not comply with my order your licence will be cancelled and the mistress and the inmates sentenced to six months' imprisonment. The laws of England prohibit the keeping of a brothel without a licence, and therefore it is necessary that you should apply to the proper authority for it and then start the business. If you have a licence you must be obedient and abide by it. It is known that you act contrary to the laws and misbehave yourself in your brothel. Being influenced, by the detectives you allow your inmates to do what they like and insult my man and squeeze his money. I warn you against doing it because it is not light to squeeze good people in that manner. If this matter, and the

The anti-foreign party in China loses by the death of Tsen Yu-ying, the late Vicerov of Yunnan and Kweichow, its hest friend and mest formidable supporter. Burn in the adjecent Kwangsi province, through life he has been the determined opponent of everything foreign, and there is only too much teason to suppose that he was directly instrumental in the murder of Mr. Margary, of the British Consular Service; and although the Commissioners appointed to invesin this conclusion;-Teen carried too many guns for them at Peking, and came off with flying colours and was shortly afterwards made Governor of the Fokeen province. The late Viceroy was certainly consistent in his hatred of foreigners throughout his career: and one of his last acts whilst in this neighborhood, in the year 1880, exemplified this, for on arrival at Canton en route to Foochow to assume his office, he arranged that he should not to pass through Hongkong waters, but that the gunboat conveying him to Foochow should give Hongkong a wide berth of about fifty miles. Tsen was not a succe as during the short time he held office as Governor of Fokien; he was too "ultra ad ullra," and his promotion to the Vice-royalty of the provinces in which his whole life had been spent was welcomed by all. The Tongking authorities probably will find matters run more smoothly by Tsen's obliteration from the roll of Last week there was great rejolding at Taipakino among the Chinese officials, as news had been received from Kelung that the railway tunnel at Nin-ka was pierced through at last, after many, many months of hard work, under the supervision of different Europeans, and after losing, through sickness, several hundreds of soldiers who had been working in the tunnel Mr. Bourne, the civil engineer at present in charge of the work, accomplished the task, and cut the tunnel through, and though a good deal of work has been done, a far greater task, that of making the tunnel wide enough for the railway to pass, and roofing it, has yet to be accomplished, and which will take many months, as there are not enough soldiers at work, they being scattered, some mounting guns at the new forts at Kelung and Tamsui, others working on the railway towards Talwanfoo, and a large number on the railway bridge crossing Kelung

The three Dutch Engineers who went to K-ifeig and interviewed Wu Taichong on the subject of the Huang-ho have returned. section of the river over which Wu presides is believed by him to be perfectly scenie, and needs nothing further to be done to it. At Wu' suggestion., however, the Dutch gentlemen proceeder > Chi-nan Fu to see the Governor of Shantonia H. E. Chang Yao, who gave the Weather very warm and sultry. The British | engineers a warm welcome, and desired them to make a full report on the state of the Huang-ho in the Shantung section. Letters from Kai-feng Fu say the Cheng Chou but is not regarded with anxiety. Most of the labourers formerly employed on the works have been sent home, and man, soldiers lent by the Viceroy I i have returned to their camps. According to appearances the most dangerous parts of the Huang-ho banks are now in Shantung: There is an unusual amount of sickness of a sovere type among the Chinese, in and round Trentsin, especially among the refugees from the famine stricken districts of Shantung who have filtered into the place; hundreds of poor wretches are dying from fever and exhaustion, and the high-roads southward are said to be strewn with dying people. We are still experiencing a succession of gales of wind, in excess of all precedent. One day it is hot like a furnace, the next co'd, but always wind, wind, while the crops are dying for want of moisture. Owing to the long continued drought the wheat crop of this province, which in good years gives a large yield, has come to nought. It is an utter failure, and will not be ten per cent of the average. The millet crop, for the same reason, is not only backward but is in great danger, and unless rain falls soon, will be a failure also. The agricultural prospects of the year, so far, are very gloomy. The light showers of Thursday night are only tantalising. The times now kept by the trains are very irregular, due to the fact that one of the drivers Since the appointment of the new directorate there has been a marked improvement in the administration, and there is evidently room for such when the staff is so apparently meagre that the indisposition of a driver interferes with the proper working of the line. - Chinese Times.

Peking, May 12th. All the replies in regard to the railways for China .rom the Tartar Generals, Governors-General, and Governors have by His Majesty's request been submitted to Li Hung-chung, who is to report on the matter.

The day b fore yesterday "the mysterious one" left us for Tientsin. His Chinese friends tell me, but I don't believe it, that he is to call upon Li Hung-chang to receive his final orders before he proceeds to Melbourne, as Consul for after they have arrived at years of discretion. On account of Drs. Irvin and Mackenzie being decorated by Li-Hung-chang, the members of the Tsung-li Yamen are considering how they will decorate Dr. John Dudgeon. This, I believe, is to be brought to the notice of his Majesty, on account of the long and useful service rendered by this gentlemen in connection with the Tung Weu Kuan College, and the gratuitous medical advice given to his Majesty's subjects

The weather is hot, and no rain. The ground is parched and it is feared there will be a failure with the wheat crop, which has created great uneasiness here. His Majesty is constantly praying at the Temple, situded between the Coal Hill and the North Lake outside the Palace, for rain.—Shanghai Mercury.

WHAT ENGLISH ROYALTY COSTS

Early last session it was very freely rumored in society and in the lobbies of Parliament that the Queen had grown tired of finding pocket money for young Prince Albert Victor of Wales, popularly known as "Collars and Cuffs," and that in consequence her Majesty's loyal Commons would be call d upon to make provision for the and vowed her will should be done. The of the royal family was referred to a select committee, of which Mr. Gladstone is a member. The fight, however, has been only postponed, and it is practically certain that a battle royal shall present its report, Meanwhile Prince Albert Victor is trying to eke out a living on a couple of thousands a year allowed him by his father, and about as much, which is grudgingly doled out quarterly, by his year by the House of Commons, with only an parsimonious grandmother.

will be fought next session when the committee.

failed most completely to live within his income. Such a proceeding would, indeed, be most unprincely and at shameful variance with the traditions of the house of Guelph, When the Prince of Wales came of age he scooped into his l royal pocket at once the comfortable sum of $3,000,0 o, the accumulations during his minority marvelous celerity, and His Royal Highness has his marriage to Alexandra of Demark, the most On dit that the Russian flect is expected charming Princess of modern times. If the here in about ten days to take possession of father did not talk, there were plenty of people Deer Island, which they intend to fortily, and to tell the lad all about it. (Limited), agents in Hongkong Usurers are very kind when dealing with the heir to a growth. Albert Victor's "paper" doub not float around the money market; but it exists in plenty, and in due season will have to be met. The Prince; unlike his father, will have no accumulations of ducal or other revenues to draw upon when Queen Victoria shell be gathered to her fathers, but he can rend restsonably upon a good fat le new from his royal grandmbther.

Her Majesty Queen Victoria must be a very rich woman-probably the girbest of her se living. During the difetime of her husband Prince Albert of Sixe-Coburg-Gotha, she and not" spend more than one fid of her income. Since his death, awenty-six years ago, she must have saved quite three fourths of her revenue What her savings must be may be estimated from the following statement as to her official

Her Majesty receives as Quien an annual salary, termed the Civil List, of $1.925,000; as Duchess of Lancast, relie draws annually $205 000 and a pension of $4,015, in "lieu of prisage and butlerage on wines imported into the duchy," whatever that may mean This sum of $2 000 000 odd is almost all clear profit. Her Majesty does not even have to be charitable out of her own pocket, for Parliament grants every year about $7 000 for royal charities and bounties.

Americans who attend British race meetings are always impressed with the evidence they afford of the sovereign's munificent patronage of the national sport, for at every important meeting there is a Queen's Plate for which all may compete. But, again, her Majesty enjoys the reputation of benevolence without personal inconvenience, for the moneys for these stakes are dutifully provided by the House of Commons every year. Parliament always provides, too, for the repairs of palaces, and even for kitchen gardens attached thereto, sometimes at a cost of $150,000 in one year. Royal yachts are provided and kept in repair at an annual cost of about $400,000 Her Majesty's limner costs $480 a year, her Majesty's historiographer $920, and her Majesty's clockmaker, who certainly never makes clocks, is put down annually for the modest sum of $82.

The loving care and loyal anxiety of the Commons for Her Majesty's comfort extends even to the matter of rats. Buckingham Palace, a big-pile of buildings facing Hyde Park, where the great state drawing-rooms are held during the season, is, or was, infested with vermin and, as it would never do to have a Queen or a great dame standing on the table holding up her skirts and shricking "Rats!" like ordinary womenfolk, the House of Commons, with reckless disregard of expense, sets aside annually the sum of $70 with which to pay a rat-catcher.

Legislative complaisance does not stop here. Queen Victoria built memorials of her late husband in Windsor Castle and in Hyde Park; Parliament votes every year $120 for attendance. at the former and $2,500 for repairs and regilding of the latter.

Altogether the Queen, personally, costs this much-taxed nation not less than $2,250,000 every year, of which over $2,000,000 goes straight into her own private purse. In addition to this, Her Majesty owns an enormous amount of private property-houses, lands, and stocks-although by law she is not supposed to have any source of income save what Parliament provides, When Prince Albert died, leaving personalty variously estimated at from $3,000,0" to $5,000,000, the statute was openly defied; the will was not even deposited at Somerset House, the legal receptacle for such things, much less.

The State also relieves the Queen of the trouble and expense of providing for her children The Peincess Royal, upon her marriage with the Crown Prince of Germany, was dowered by the House of Commons with $200,000 and an annuity" of $40,000, 'She is new Empress Downger of Germany, but she still deams her annuity. The Prince of Wales got $120,000 when he came of age, despite the enormous necomulations from the Connwall revenues already referred to, and he receives yearly as heir apparent and Duke of Cranwall $150,000, exclusive of his pay as Fight Marshai and for several Colonelgies. The Propess of Water receives from the British Trasu y 3,0,000 a year, and about half as much from her, own country, Denmark. The Quanta second son, Prince Alfred, Dake of I diaburgh, receives $12'.000 yearly, the pay of an Admiral in the avo and other pickings, every cent of which is given grudgingly. Alfred has never been popular, purtly owing to his quiscrily habits, and purtly because he is married to a Russian princess, a sister of the present Czar. Prince Arthur, Duke of Connaught, is the most popular of the Queen's sons, a good rider to hounds, and a very fur soldier. He is at present in India, in command of a brigade, and will in due course blossom forth into Field Marshal Commander-in-Chief of the British army, a post at present filled by the old Duke of Camyoung man's needs on a scale befitting his bridge, cousin of the Queen.
